With more than 2 years of professional experience, Emily specializes in labor and social security consulting.

Her practice focuses on providing preventive and corrective advice to domestic and foreign clients in all aspects related to compliance with employer obligations, including the preparation of employment contracts, internal regulations, as well as policies, protocols and trainings contemplated in the labor legislation, tailored to the needs of each client.

Emily also has extensive experience in labor law audits to determine the level of compliance with labor obligations, which may be self-corrective, or as part of a business acquisition process to identify contingencies that could impact the transaction.
