With over 6 years of professional experience, Andrés specializes in antitrust and competition, corporate compliance, and international trade. He advises domestic and international companies on antitrust and competition law, regulatory compliance, and international trade, supporting them in the design of legal strategies to mitigate risks and ensure compliance with applicable regulatory obligations.

He has participated in merger control notifications, investigations involving anticompetitive practices, and the analysis of transactions with antitrust implications. He also advises companies on the design and implementation of compliance programs, internal investigations, antidumping and international trade proceedings, as well as regulatory matters related to health law, audits, and other administrative proceedings initiated by government authorities.

Andrés earned a Master of Laws (LL.M.) from Northwestern Pritzker School of Law, where he focused his studies on antitrust and competition law, corporate compliance, and international business law.
