Daniel has five years of experience in International Trade and Customs.

His practice has focused on advising and representing clients in administrative customs proceedings, including desk audits and home visits initiated by the Mexican Tax Administration Service (SAT).

Throughout his career, he has participated in origin verification procedures under various international trade agreements, ensuring regulatory compliance and protecting his clients' interests. He also has experience in litigation before the Federal Court of Administrative Justice and federal courts throughout Mexico.

He has advised companies in strategic sectors such as automotive, steel and aluminum, and energy, designing strategies to ensure compliance with international trade regulations.
